Symptoms.

The symptoms of Catarrb as they generally appear are at first very slight. Persons find they have frequent attacks, and are more reasided to the changes of temperature. In this condition, the nose may be dry, or a slight discharge, this and acrid, atterward becoming ablek and adnesive,

As the disease becomes chronic, the discharges are ncreased in quantity and changed in quality, the are now thick and heavy, and are hawked or a bad breath; the voice is thick and nasal; the eyes are weak; the sense of the smoll is lessened or des troyed; desfnow frequently takes place, Another common and important symtom of Catarris is, that the person is obliged to clear his threat in the merning of a thick or aliny mucous, which has fal-ien sown from the next during the night. When this takes place the person may be sure that his
